

Bones of “The Corpse Bride”

(bridge to the medial woman)

“Whoever of us who has been taken down to the grave by those who feared that we would generate new ideas, a new life, new innovations, new insights. No matter what, there is a breaking of the silence even though it is frightening at first, to say, “No I still have hopes, I still have dreams. I still want life regardless of what has occurred to me.” That there is another side of this nature. The medial woman who says, “ Good, thank you for telling me. I will live this out now. I will take all of the hopes and all of the dreams and I will unfurl them and unfold them in every direction. You who are so confined and so drained, rest, rest. I will take this the rest of the way.” - Clarissa Estes
